General Editor's Note

I have the pleasure of introducing to the Brazilian readers an enriching editorial contribution to RILE Journal organized by Dr. John Ryan. The articles presented are extremely relevant to the field of Environmental Humanities taking into consideration the Anglophone perspective in Australia, Bangladesh, Indonesia, and India. The selection of ecopoems completes the substantial selected material. The most important feature of Environmental Humanities is to provide the specialized professionals the opportunity to have access at the same time to multiple perspectives that characterize the several fields related to ecological humanities.

Thank you very much to all the contributors to this special issue

Zélia M.Bora
